THE SPARROW'S FALL

Noted by Frank Gliston, Who Revived
the Vanquished.

Frank Gliston, the well known carman employed by the Illinois Central, probably will be made honorary member of the humane society. Any way he deserves a medal of some kind for his "first aid to the injured" practiced. Two sparrows were fighting in midair. They were flying fast and one struck a trolley wire. It fell to the ground, its neck appearing to have been broken. Gliston picked it up, went to a neighboring hydrant and dashed cold water on the sparrow's head. After administering a few cold dashes of water the bird showed some signs of life and in a short time was able to flutter about. The carman placed it on a fence and had the satisfaction of seeing it fly away a few minutes later.

Must Cut Out Profanity.

Chicago, June 15.—The members of the Waitress' Union held an indignation meeting yesterday, at which their sentiments were crystallized unanimously in the following maxim for the benefit of the managers: "Employers shall not use profane language to waitresses." This dictum was carefully typewritten and laid on the desk of the manager of every downtown restaurant where girls are employed. The indignation of the young women is said to have been aroused when a manager in a restaurant discharged a waitress for taking offense at a reprimand.

What He Could Do.

Jackson, Ky., June 15.—Judge Hargis said to the correspondent this morning that he could take B. J. Ewen, Mose Feltner, Asbury Spicer and Anse White and convict Jesus Christ for the murder of Abraham Lincoln if he would give them a paltry sum to testify. Hargis' case was set for the first day of the October term of court.

Kentzel, who is an American citizen, was employed by the British government as a muleteer on board the transport Montcalm.
